Dear Paul Coultrice,

RE: Rody Kenny Coultrice. Dove's Dismay, 1944.

The Art Gallery of Ontario (AGO) has recently become a member of AMICO. AMICO (Italian for "friend" and pronounced the same way) is the Art Museum Image Consortium, an alliance of public museums and galleries around the world who have joined together to enable educational access of the digital documentation of their collections.

As an AMICO member, the Art Gallery of Ontario will join other not-for-profit institutions with a collection of works of art which are significant for educational users. Prospective users would include universities, colleges, and of course sister art institutions.

The above image has been selected to represent part of our permanent collection. As such, we are seeking permission from you for electronic use. The AMICO images will be delivered at the general specification of 1024 x 768 pixels in 245 bit color for the WWW sites. All works will be identified and credited and acknowledged with appropriate copyright notification.

We would like to emphasize that this is a purely educational undertaking. Our goal is for academic access to the collection exclusively for study and research purposes. We would greatly appreciate your participation in this project. If you agree to allow the above image to be used for AMICO, would you kindly sign below and return this letter in the enclosed envelope.

Sincerely yours,

Syvalya Elchen
